Entron Independent:

I send you by to-day's mail a hasty sketch of our new discovery. I have just returned from King Solomon's Cave, up Ophir gulch, the existence of which you are no doubt aware, as it has been mentioned in some of the Territorial papers. Yesterday morning, however, four of ns determined upon further investigation to satisfy ourselves, if possible, of the extent of the cave. The party was made up of Messrs, Lon. Whittier, Geo. Bernard, "Abe" Echols and your informant. We outfitted with three days' rations, blankets, candles, pitch-pine for EDITOR INDEPENDENT:

informant. We outsitted with three days' rations, blankets, candles, pitch-pine for torches, twine, a compass, and, in short, everything necessary to prosecute a thorough exploration. We reached there at 0 o'clock, and proceeded to the Middle Chamber, as it is called, where we made camp, and after an hour's rest, began our labors.

At the end of the Middle Chamber are a number of long, narrow passages. Into the largest of these we insinuated our-selves, one behind the other, and by sometimes crawling, and again finding room to walk half erect, we worked our way for over 400 feet, when we suddenly merged into A MOST MAGNIFICENT CHAMBER.

A MOST MACNIFICENT CHAMBER.

The ceiling of which we found to be about 35 feet high, the length of the room 85 feet, and width 54 feet. As we held high our flaming torches, the walls presented an appearance of beauty and grandeur it seldom falls to the privilege of motal eye to witness. At first sight we were impressed with the belief that this wonderful chamber had been cut out of the solid rock by human hands; for it did not seem possible that nature could by accident form so rare a Temple, with such a wonderful display of architecture, beneath the surface of the earth. After somewhat recovering from our sur-After somewhat recovering from our sur-prise, we proceeded to examine minute-ly this strange place. Immediately to-the right of the entrance, and in the co-ner close to the wall, we discovered indi-

AN OLD PIER-PLACE. Several small pieces of charcoal were picked up, and the blackened floor, as well as the smoke-stained wall, furnished evidence that in this hall some person or persons had at one time taken refuge tontinuing along the right side, we had not progressed over 40 feet when we met with further evidences of the cave having ones been Leaning against the wall was a huge plate of copper, 57 inches in length and 36 inches in width, and about one-fourth of an inch in thickness. This we took to be a shield as near the center were two holes eight inches apart, used doubtleas for inserting a strap through which to slip the arm. It was wrought by hand, as the marks of a siedge or other heavy instrument were plainly visible on it. On discovering this, a feeling akin to fear came over the party, and we were almost ready to beat a hasty retreat and leave further investigations to those who delight to explore tombs and resurrect the remains of those who lived in the ages of long ago, when it was intimated by one of the company that we might possibly find hidden treasure or trinkets of value stowed away in some nook or corner; and preparing new torches, with THE HIDING-PLACE OF MEN.

corner; and preparing new torches, with increased energy we renewed the search. About ten feet beyond where the shield was found, and eight feet from the floor, was a cavity in the wall ten feet in length, and over four feet high. Placing a few stones one upon another. Barnard climbed up and held his light in to see the extent of the opening, but he imme-diately turned toward us with a frightened look, and it was some seconds be-lore he could explain the nature of the discovery he had made. But when he assured us that in that niche lay

A PETRIFIED GIANT, All were eager to get a look at him, and and were eager to get a look at him, and one after another we climbed up and gazed in. The opening had every indication of being natural—no marks of tools were visible within it. (In the Cascade well, in the first chamber, are a number of similar caverns, but not so large). Two of the party being hoisted up to take the to take the

DIMENSIONS OF THE MONSTER MAN. He was found to be 9 feet 7% inches in length. 38 inches across the breast, and two feet deep. He was covered from head to foot with a coating, from one to two inches in thickness, similar to that found on the roofs and pillars, in a number of places, hard as linestone, and ber of places, hard as limestone; and along the sides this casing, as it appeared at first to be, had united with the rock on which it lay, leaving this relic of the Stone Age, or some other distant age,

ENCASED IN A COPPIN OF STONE. ENCASED IN A COPPIN OF STONE.

A helmet of brass or copper, of gigantic proportions, was upon his head, which the corrosive elements of Time has sealed to his brow. It is the most perfect petrification I have ever seen—the whole body being as solid as though cut out of a block of marble. Near this rare specimen, were found

TWO MAMMOTH SPEAR-HEADS, Eighteen inches in length and six inches in width at the widest point. One of them was intended to be fastened in a handle, after the fashion of an arrow-head, while the other had a socket of silver in-

while the other had a socket of silver into which to insert a huge pole or handle. Near by, on the floor, was picked up a large hook made of bone—probably manufactured from the tusk of some Levistan of the land—which one of the party suggested was a portion of the war accourrements of the giant, as such a waspon on the end of a 40-foot pole, in the hands of active attendants, would be a success in dragging out the victims of the great warrior as fast as he slew them, and by this means kept the way clear.

On the wall near the tomb we discovered some strange looking letters, or ered some strange looking letters, or characters of some kind, and the

PICTURES OF THREE SHIPS, Apparently having been executed with a sharp-pointed instrument. There were no figures resembling ours, though I have no doubt the writing, if interpreted, would give the history of the giant king of the cave, whose body lay stone-dead before us. Inclosed I send a fac-simile of the drawings of the ships, and a portion of the writing on the wall. The ships have three masts, the middle one being only two-thirds the height of the outside masts.

On the opposite side of the room from from this, we discovered a huge flat stone leaning against the wall. On the smooth surface of this was also the engraving of a ship, much larger than the others, and near the low the

On removing this huge stone, a passage-way, four feet high, and in some places more than that, led us into a smaller chamber, than that, led us into a smaller chamber, about 30 feet square, though more interesting than any of the others. Here the party became almost wild at the strange and curious things. Bones of men at least nine feet in stature were found near the entrance, among which were two or three skulls. Near the center of the

Around this were a number of tools, large and small, and one large sledge lay on the edge of the mortar just as the workman left it when he struck his fast blow at least one thousand years ago. These tools, so far as examined, were found to be copper, though tempered, as they appeared to be almost as hard as steel. Considerable quantities of further investigations till to-morrow.

The cave has been pre-empted, and every bone, tool, etc., will be carefully

An official statement of the operations of the London Mint, gives many highly interesting details, which show the extraordinary and growing demand for gold, 000, ann that of the copper, £50,000.

How greatly the mint has lately been in demand appears from the fact that prior to 1871 only £50,000,000 were coined, on ENGLAND has a capital of $1,000,000, 000 invested in cotton manufactories, and no less than 1,000,000 people are supported by this branch of industry. The low price of labor in that country fostered the business. The increased fostered the business. The increased cost of English labor threatens to cripple it. Manchester is alarmed, and not without reason. At the present rate of increase England will, in a few years, be nearly on a footing in the matter of wages with the United States.
